Globalization complicates immigration control. It advocates for a free-market system, whereby people and commodities move unrestrictedly. These movements are often motivated by the push and pull economic factors such as poverty and job or business opportunities respectively.

The Impact of Globalization on Immigration Control | Free ...

The economic side of globalization, which receives most of the scholarly attention to the subject, is found in “that loose combination of free-trade agreements, the Internet, and the integration of financial markets that is erasing borders and uniting the world into a single, lucrative, but brutally competitive, marketplace” (Friedman 1996). It is a
