Laminar Flow Panel Type Lfp

The Laminar Flow Panel type, LFP, has been developed for specialist applications where the mixing of supply air with room air must be avoided. Recommended supply air temperature difference -5 to -10K. The diffuser provides a stable, low turbulence vertical discharge into the occupied zone. This makes the TROX Type LFP ideal for clean rooms, laboratories, operating theatres, broadcasting studios and computer rooms.

Laminar Flow Panel Grilles - LFP. Laminar flow panels are simple but effective units, commonly used in areas like operating theatres and clean rooms where a region of clean air needs to be created, without pulling in surrounding air as is normally required from diffusers. Most commonly ordered in tile replacer sizes, LFP's are designed to integrate with lay-in type ceiling systems, enabling large banks to be created with units positioned next to each other.

The laminar air pattern is achieved by use of a primary baffle within the plenum chamber and a low free area perforated discharge plate at the face of the diffuser. The diffusers are available with either a flanged frame style (type LFF) to suit conventional exposed or concealed 'T' ceilings, or, with a flangeless frame (type LFM) suitable for modular panel constructions.

Laminar flow, type of fluid (gas or liquid) flow in which the fluid travels smoothly or in regular paths, in contrast to turbulent flow, in which the fluid undergoes irregular fluctuations and mixing. In laminar flow, sometimes called streamline flow, the velocity, pressure, and other flow properties at each point in the fluid remain constant. . Laminar flow over a horizontal surface may be ...

Further downstream, the laminar flow becomes unstable and fluid particles start to move perpendicular to the surface as well as parallel to it. Therefore, the previously stratified flow starts to mix up and fluid particles are exchanged between adjacent layers. Due to this seemingly random motion this type of flow is known as turbulent.
