A economic structure Is a set of relations of production, which guarantee the production of goods and the provision of services on which the commercial exchange of all societies is based. By definition, an economic structure encompasses all production activities. It ranges from the agricultural and livestock sector to the commercialization of products and services, without neglecting all the processes of transformation that take place in the manufacturing industries.

Marxian Economics Definition

There are four primary types of economic systems in the world: traditional, command, market and mixed. Each economy has its strengths and weaknesses, its sub-economies and tendencies, and, of course, a troubled history. Below we examine each system in turn and give ample attention to the attributes listed above.
